Razors Were Not Graham's

Those Found Under His Mattress and in His Clothing, Witness Testifies at Continuation of Inquest Into Murder at Marlborough.

Two more witnesses were sworn before Coroner Suttles Wednesday afternoon in the inquest being conducted upon the body of Richard Graham, who was found murdered November in the "sucker hole," deep ravine back of the village of Marlborough. The examination of witnesses was conducted by Assistant District Attorney Murray.

Several other witnesses were to be examined but were unable to be present on account of illness and at the conclusion of the examination of the two witnesses an adjournment was taken until Friday afternoon, January 18.

Victor Baxter, who was for a time employed on the Samuel Baxter farm where Graham was employed at the time of his death, was the first witness sworn. Victor is a farmer and he worked for his uncle residing in a shack opposite that which Graham occupied. He had known Graham since he was a small boy when Graham came to Marlborough and had worked with Graham for two years on the farm.

Victor Baxter said that he cut Graham's hair on several occasions and had seen Graham's razor, but had never shaved Graham, but had seen the razor to share Graham's back after cutting his hair with a hand razor for Graham.

Graham's razor he described as a black handled razor of Sheffield make. He had not been shown the razor found in the clothing which was found a short distance from Graham's body and had not seen the razor which was found under Graham's mattress in the shack after his death.

The razor which was found covered with blood in a coat pocket at the scene of the murder was shown Mr. Baxter and he examined it and positively swore that it was not Graham's razor. The razor which was found under the mattress in the shack was also examined and was not Graham's.

He testified that Graham carried his razor in his coat pocket but the two razors shown he was positive were not Graham's. The razor found in the coat pocket of the dead man is a peculiar shaped razor.

The last he saw Graham was on August 19. He had not been working on the Baxter farm since that time. Judson DeWitt, who by occupation is a well driller and a resident of Marlborough, was the next witness called. He knew John Berman who was examined at the last hearing before the coroner. Berman was employed by Mr. DeWitt from May 21 until October 3, 1932. Berman was employed every day during that time but from October 1 until 29 when he was paid off he had been working for DeWitt. When Berman quit work he had very little money coming as Mr. DeWitt said he gave Berman a dollar each morning for his meals.

Mr. DeWitt did not recall Berman and James Ronk talking together along the last of October. Berman testified when examined that he and Ronk had talked together in the presence of Mr. DeWitt and that they had talked about buying some cheap clothing. This incident Mr. DeWitt could not recall. He did not know Graham. He never saw Berman have any money when he worked for him. He knew Berman went to the barber shop at times.

Mr. DeWitt could not identify either of the razors shown. He never saw either of them before. So far as he could recall he never saw Ronk and Berman talk together. Mr. DeWitt formerly resided at Milton and never practically no one in Marlborough until he moved to Marlborough to reside.

Other witnesses who had been expected at the hearing it had been impossible to reach. Berman and Burns who were examined at the last hearing on December 21 failed to put in appearance Wednesday although notified to appear at the adjourned hearing by the coroner.

The inquest was adjourned until 2 o'clock on January 18.

Submarine Sunk With All of Crew

British Submarine Rammed by Battleship During Naval Manuevers Eleven Miles Off Portland.

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, Jan. 10.—The British submarine L-24 was sunk off Portland today with the loss of all on board.

The L-24 went down after a collision with another vessel during naval maneuvers. Up to five-thirty this afternoon the Admiralty had not been advised how many persons were on board the lost submarine.

The L-24 was built in 1919 and normally carried a crew of 38 officers and men.

Other vessels from the fleet rushed at top speed to the point where the L-24 was seen to disappear. Efforts were made to raise the submarine, but without success. It was not known if the hatches were open or closed when the craft sank.

It was reported that the British battleship Resolution had rammed the submarine, sinking it at once.

There are 14 other submarines from the Atlantic fleet participating in the maneuvers 11 miles off shore.

State Troopers' Annual Report

A Tribute to Former Superintendent Chandler—14,166 Arrests and 91 Per Cent Convictions—Motor Vehicle and Liquor Laws Most Often Violated.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Jan. 10 (Special).—Paying a high tribute to the services of Lt. Col. George P. Chandler of Kingston, who recently resigned as the commandant of the New York State Troopers, Captain John Adams Warner, the new commandant, yesterday filed his annual report with the legislature.

"The report of the achievements of this department for the year just passed is submitted under the name of the superintendent who has been in office at this time but a few weeks," writes Captain Warner. "The work here accounted for was carried on under the administration of the man who organized the New York State Police and developed it to its present high efficiency."

Captain Warner then adds that although the state may have abler men in its service, "it can have none more loyal to the principles on which this department is founded or who will feel more deeply his duty to the great state of New York whose servant he is proud to be."

The report shows that the number of arrests for the past year by the State Police was 14,166 of which 12,936 convictions were obtained. There were 791 cases pending. This table shows that the percentage of convictions was 91. But 3 per cent of the arrests resulted in a discharge of prisoners.

Properly recovered during the past year by the State Police totaled in value, $550,379.92, while the amount of fines collected was $146,021.38. The police made 13,992 investigations without arrests and patrolled 2,078,158 miles.

It is also shown in the report that the largest number of crimes called to the attention of the State Police was in connection with the motor vehicle law, there having been 4,772 of these cases.

Liquor violations investigated numbered 252 and murder cases numbered 13, while 514 tramps were gathered in and 521 cases of larceny were called to the attention of the gray garbed troopers.

Attention is called in the report to the great benefit to the State Police of the disability benefits law, which provides an allowance of a trooper's half pay to the widow or dependent minor with maintenance allowance and half pay during disability.

Another law declared to be of great benefit also was the one authorizing the state to acquire the barracks at Batavia, Malone, Sidney, Oneida and Troy.

RHINELAND SEPARATIST LEADER IS KILLED

By Telegram to The Freeman. Speyer, Germany, Jan. 10.—The Separatist government in the Rhineland Palatinate today proclaimed a state of siege, following an outbreak of shooting in a restaurant when four persons, including Heinz Orbis, leader of the secessionists, were killed. Three other persons were wounded. All were shot while dining in a restaurant last night.

Egyptian Officials Wroth.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 10.—The Egyptian government today decided to censor dispatches from Luxor to the London Times because an official communiqué said that Tut-Ankh-Amen's mummy would remain in the tomb because King George, England, desired it. This statement incensed the Egyptian officials.

Greene To Be Confirmed.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Jan. 10.—The fight in the State Senate over the confirmation of Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, appointed by Governor Smith as state superintendent of public works, probably will not be staged for at least two or three weeks. It is generally believed he will be confirmed.

Man Who Knows Talks of "Stripes"

Eytinge, Former Prisoner in Arizona, Tells Rotarians Criminals Should Be Discharged When and if Cured.

Speaking from experience, observation and study of the subject, Louis Victor Eytinge spoke on "Stripes" before the Rotary Club at its regular luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday, pointing out briefly some of the defects of the prison system by which a man instead of being reformed becomes a "repeater," and outlined a program by which mental defects will be segregated and the man who is a social being will be given a chance.

Mr. Eytinge's story reads more like romance than fact. He was convicted in Arizona of murder which he claims he never committed, the charge being that he chloroformed a man physically his superior, in an open buggy, off the desert. He was sentenced to life imprisonment but on New Year's day of 1923 he was released. When taken to the Arizona prison to serve his life sentence he was told he had tuberculosis and could not live more than two months. Prison fare even for sick patients was poor and he thought of means of getting some little luxuries, such as mosquito netting for windows, etc. He noticed that prisoners made small trinkets to sell to visitors and conceived the idea of creating a market for such things in the outside world.

His letters to interested people in the prisoners' products were of such effectiveness that prison manufacture became a business. The letters attracted the attention of big advertising concerns, and while in prison he conducted from his cell a magazine devoted to advertising. Upon his release he was employed by a big New York advertising agency.

Addressing the Rotarians, Mr. Eytinge said: "Mr. Warden and fellow prisoners: 'I really do not use that salutation because of an acquaintance of twenty-two years with a prison, but because you as members of Rotary are prisoners—you are prisoners to your duty, and your duty is to give the best that is in you not only to your fellow Rotarians but to society; and may you never be pardoned from the performance of that duty.'"

For eleven years in the tubercular ward of a prison in Arizona, said Mr. Eytinge, he sat beside a window through which streamed a ray of sunlight, which illuminated a leather motto which said, in Latin, "The world's most useful servant best." His own experience had shown him there were two angles to the motto, which it was viewed, but in every case the meaning was the same.

Personally, he felt that he was not a public speaker, and he never had had much opportunity for it. In entering one prison he had been asked by the prison warden whether he understood more than one language and answered that he had only a smattering of several languages. "We had but one language here," said the warden, "and you're supposed to keep silent in that." But he had tried to write and had produced two books, a third was being produced. "I had been told that the art of public speaking was to bring a smile to the faces of the audience and if such an announcement would induce a smile, he was glad to announce that a copy of his third publication would be mailed free of charge upon written request to the Lee Paper Company, Vicksburg, Michigan.

"The subject on which you have announced I will speak is 'Stripes,'" said Mr. Eytinge. "I ought to know more about stripes than anyone else here for I have worn them both sartorially and cutaneously. Cutaneously, I have worn them from the broad of my back to my knees, until the flesh which remained was quivering, and that word because I had endured the offense of whispering to a fellow prisoner of mine, and I have been suspended by my arms, with a ball attached to my feet, for thirty days, for having passed a cigarette to another prisoner who occupied the next cell. When they lowered me at the end of thirty days I could wear neither coat nor shoes; my shoulders were swollen so they were bigger than my legs."

"You have probably been inexpressibly shocked by the exposure of conditions which were disclosed in the Florida penal camp, but let me tell you that we of the North have no right to point the finger of scorn, for on the very day that the legislature of the state of Florida forever abolished capital punishment for certain offenses in that state, the body of a nineteen year old boy was shipped into Pensacola, and when the parents opened the lid of the casket to take a farewell look at their boy they drew back in horror when they saw that his brains had oozed out upon the satin pillow, for that boy, nineteen years old, had been beaten to death in a Michigan penal institution."

"Not long ago I visited my native state of Ohio and naturally I went back to visit the cell I had occupied in the Ohio Penitentiary—an institution which had been the home of Al Jennings and O. Henry. And while there I unearthed a document reporting conditions in a boys' industrial school. It was a report so damnable that it dared not be printed and could not be carried through the mail."

"One incident reported in that school was that of a nine year old boy who had had an eleven pound ball bolted to his leg and compelled to wear it until the flesh had mortified. The man who ordered that punishment was a speaker last September."

New Cold Wave Coming This Way

Zero Expected in Chicago on Friday With Snow to Follow the Coming of the Cold.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Chicago, Jan. 10.—A new cold wave sweeping down from the northwest was due reach the Great Lakes today in its march East and South. Snow was scheduled to follow in the footsteps of the drop.

The thermometer will not approach the mark set in the recent sub-zero spell, when 40 below was reached in northwestern states and the coldest weather in 20 years prevailed in Chicago, but probably will reach zero tomorrow night here, it was said.

The present stage of high barometric pressure, originated along the Mackenzie river in Western Canada, where there were no observation stations to give warning.

The preceding drop originated in Alaska where 12 stations gave instant warning of weather changes by wireless. Three stations along the Mackenzie river at Fort McMurray, Fort Norman and Simpson, are planned by the Canadian government, it was said.

Shriners' Ball Entertainment

Includes the Strand Quartet, Heard by Radio Fans—Decorating and Other Committees Busy—Sale of Tickets Indicates Large Crowd.

The music and entertainment committee of the Kingston Shriners' Association has looked for the Shriners' dance, which will be held at the armory on Tuesday evening, January 22, the Manhattan Ramblers 12, the Strand Male Quartet and Woodward & Morrissey.

The Manhattan Ramblers 12 will furnish the music for the entire evening for dancing and come highly recommended.

Radio fans will recognize the Strand Quartet, which is one of the finest in the country today, singing both popular jazz and the high class numbers. To radio fans this quartet is known both as the Strand Quartet and also as the American Chorus Company Quartet and sing for many of the name of the National Quartet.

This so far consists of the entertainment program which is always a feature of the annual Shriners' dance, and entertainment. Another number will be added later. The committee at the present time is working to get another high class attraction and the result will be announced in a few days as soon as arrangements have been completed.

Those who do not intend to participate in the dancing will be well entertained and the Shriners are making every effort to put on one of the best evening's entertainments possible.

Committees having in charge the details of the affair are working and decorations this year will surpass all past Shriners' events. The proceeds of the dance will be devoted to the use of the Industrial Home in this city.

Tickets are selling fast and from all accounts the attendance will be large. A number of out of town Shriners will attend, making the night a gala one.

AT THE THEATERS.

At the Opera House at tonight's performance will be seen a new bill of vaudeville, Richard Talmadge in his latest production, "Taru the Flamingo," will also be shown, beginning tonight. This picture is said to contain a story of admitted appeal. Great fire scenes help along the thrills and excitement.

"The Spoilers," Jesse D. Hampton's production of Rex Beach's famous novel of Alaska, will be shown for the first time tonight at the shows of the Keeney Theater. The cast of characters is headed by Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Barbara Bedford and Robert Edison and others.

"The Spoilers" was written by Rex Beach from actual observation. At the Auditorium today, Milton Sills and Alice Lake in "Enchantment," a story of exotic life, as well as pictures that depict the simple country life, are always interesting. When these two phases of life are blended in a picture by such an expert director as Irving Cummings, aided by Alice Lake, Milton Sills, Ralph Lewis, Gertrude Claire, Ben Hewitt and Richard Headrick, a startling, thrilling and entertaining picture results.

Ben Loring and his Musical Revue continue to please Orpheum patrons. "Prinzing Up Father" is the play tonight. There will be a complete change Friday. Tonight there will be a beauty parlor contest in which cash prizes will be awarded. The picture scheduled for today and tomorrow is "Lights Out."

Federals Move on Vera Cruz

Rebels Fall Back Before 10,000 Men Under Martinez. Proceeded by Bombing Planes.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Mexico City, Jan. 10.—More than 10,000 federal troops under General Eugenio Martinez began their "on to Vera Cruz" march today. San Marcos, in the state of Tlaxcala, is being used as the federal base of operations.

Federal airplanes preceded the advance, dropping bombs upon the rebel positions.

According to advices received by War Secretary Serrano, the rebels did not give battle but retired before the federal advance.

Serrano said the advance against the rebels on the Jalisco front would be undertaken immediately. Upwards of 15,000 federal soldiers under personal command of General Obregon will take part in the movement on the western front.

Five hundred automobile trucks have been sent up to the western front to assist the overland movement.

American built bombing airplanes are being sent to the front to precede federal infantry. War department officials believe that the battle will open at La Barea, southeast of Guadalupe in the state of Jalisco.

Welcome Pastor at Reception

Wednesday night the members of Trinity Lutheran Church of Spring street gave their new pastor, the Rev. William H. Pretzsch, a welcome reception, in the Sunday school rooms.

The auditorium was filled with members, friends and neighbors of the congregation as a token of continued and renewed fellowship and cooperation for the church and the entire community.

There was a well received luncheon prepared by the ever active Ladies' Aid Society, for which the Rev. William Nelson, pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran Church, offered prayer. Albert Schumacher acted as toastmaster in his usual humorous way.

Ennio Pretzsch, the pastor's little daughter, recited a verse of welcome to all. The Roundout Social Manager, special guests, rendered two beautiful choruses. Jacob Schantz and Charles Andrews delivered addresses of welcome to the new pastor. The choir of the church also sang a special selection. Mrs. William Nelson sang a solo which was well received by all.

The Rev. William Nelson then spoke on the "Goodwill" which should exist between Trinity and Redeemer. Miss Nettie Voss and Mrs. Murphy each delivered a recitation highly enjoyed by all. The new pastor responded to all the words of welcome, and thanked every one, who in any way contributed toward this welcome reception which was so thoughtfully arranged in his and his family's honor. He also spoke feelingly of his venerable predecessor, the Rev. A. Schmidtknecht, to whom and his wife in their retirement, he wished God's richest blessing. In conclusion all sang the doxology.

TOWED BLAZING FORD TO CUPERTOWN FIRE STATION

Wednesday morning about 4:35 o'clock while A. Falmotto was driving his Ford touring car along the Plank road in the town of Ulster, it suddenly burst into flames. The car was stopped and the flames apparently extinguished and the car was taken in tow to be brought to this city. After traveling a short distance the fire again broke out but instead of stopping to extinguish the flames the car continued on into the city and to the Wilksey Fire station on Fair street where the firemen were called out and with the use of chemicals extinguished the fire. The Ford was a wreck.

SIX RACE HORSES VICTIMS OF FIRE

Ruppert Trotters Killed at Poughkeepsie Barns.

Six horses, including Eva Gay, by Guy Asworthy, and one of her colts by Justice Brooke, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the main barn of the Hudson River Driving park owned by the Jacob Ruppert estate at Poughkeepsie Wednesday night. The loss is estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000.

Appointed U. S. Commissioner.

Samuel H. Brown, lawyer in Poughkeepsie, has been notified that he has been appointed a Federal Commissioner for the Southern district of New York of which Ulster county is a part.

No Bills Passed.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Jan. 10.—Not a bill has been passed in either Senate or Assembly in the first two weeks of the present session of the Legislature.

Dickinson Interests, Including High Falls, Honk Falls and Eddyville Power Plant, to be Consolidated With Central Hudson System as Soon as Approval of Public Service Commission is Obtained.

Announcement has been made by the United Hudson Electric Corporation of an arrangement to purchase the properties of the Honk Falls Power Company and all other properties in its section of the state owned by C. P. Dickinson, including the Honk Falls and High Falls hydro-electric plants at Napunch and High Falls, both on the Rondout; also the generating station at Eddyville. These plants have an aggregate installed capacity of about 6,000 h. p. The purchase will also include some very important water power properties not yet developed, as well as a subsidiary company the Rondout Power Company supplying Rosendale, High Falls, Stone Ridge and the surrounding territory. Furthermore, the purchase includes the supply of electric energy to the Eddyville Electric Company and other companies supplying that section of Ulster county west of the Shawangunk Mountains.

The business of the Honk Falls Power Company started about 1896, and has been in continuous operation ever since—a period of over twenty-five years. In 1903, a transmission line was built from Honk Falls to Eddyville, a distance of 23,000 volts. This was one of the earliest high tension lines in the country. In 1908, a connection was made with the transmission lines of the Central Hudson system for exchange of power facilities at times of emergency and when there was any surplus power to be disposed of. As the business grew, the other customers of the Honk Falls Power Company rapidly absorbed the available generating capacity and the owners were faced with the necessity of making plans to provide for the future of the territory served by them and their customers.

Although operated as the Honk Falls Power Company, the properties have been owned by C. P. Dickinson personally. Mr. Dickinson is a resident of Massachusetts, and in view of his other important interests there, consented to dispose of his properties to the United Hudson Electric Corporation.

It became apparent several years ago to the management of the Central Hudson system, that greatly improved economics could be obtained by operating the Honk Falls property as a part of the Central Hudson system. Only in this way, through unified management and operation, could such improved economics be obtained.

The effect of this purchase by the United Hudson Electric Corporation will be to add valuable water power properties to its present power sources to provide for its rapidly expanding business.

It will be necessary, under the state laws, to secure the consent of the Public Service Commission to the purchase of the Honk Falls properties, as well as to issue the necessary securities for the purpose. The application has been prepared and will be filed at once, and it is hoped by the management of the Central Hudson system that the Honk Falls properties will become a part of the entire system early in the year 1934.

Farm Loan Ass'n Officers

The annual meeting of the Ulster County National Farm Loan Association was held in Kingston, Wednesday, January 9th. The following directors were elected: Fred Simpson, Millard Davis, Robert Harder, C. J. Hopworth and Charles Wright.

Razors Were Not Graham's

Those Found Under His Mattress and in His Clothing, Witness Testifies at Continuation of Inquest Into Murder at Marlborough.

Two more witnesses were sworn before Coroner Sutor Wednesday afternoon in the inquest being conducted upon the body of Richard Graham, who was found murdered last November in the "sucker hole" deep ravine back of the village of Marlborough. The examination of witnesses was conducted by Assistant District Attorney Murray.

Several other witnesses were to be present on account of illness and at the conclusion of the examination of the two witnesses an adjournment was taken until Friday afternoon, January 18.

Victor Baxter, who was for a time employed on the Samuel Baxter farm where Graham was employed at the time of his death, was the first witness sworn. Victor is a farmer and he worked for his uncle residing in a shack opposite that which Graham occupied. He had known Graham since he was a small boy and worked with Graham for two years on the farm.

Victor Baxter said that he cut Graham's hair on several occasions and had seen Graham's razor. He had never shaved Graham but had used the razor to shave Graham's neck after cutting his hair with a back horse clippers. He had honed the razor once for Graham.

Graham's razor, of Sheffield make, he had not been shown the razor found in the clothing which was found in short distance from Graham's body and had not seen the razor which was found under Graham's mattress in the shack after his death.

The razor which was found covered with blood in a coat pocket at the scene of the murder was shown Mr. Baxter and he examined it and positively swore that it was not Graham's razor. The razor which was found under the mattress in the shack was also examined and was not Graham's razor.

He testified that Graham carried his razor in his coat pocket but the two razors shown he was positive were not Graham's. The razor found in the coat pocket of the dead man is a regular shaped razor.

The last he saw Graham was on August 10. He had not been working on the Baxter farm since that time. He knew John Borean, who by occupation is a well driller and a resident of Marlborough, was the next witness called. He knew John Borean who was examined at the last hearing before the coroner. Borean was employed by Mr. DeWitt from May 21 until October 30, 1923. Borean was employed every day during that time but from October 1 until 30 when he was paid off he had been working for DeWitt. When Borean quit work he had very little money coming as Mr. DeWitt said he gave Borean a dollar each morning for his meals.

Mr. DeWitt did not recall Borean and James Ronk talking together along the last of October. Borean testified when examined that he and Ronk had talked together in the presence of Mr. DeWitt and that they talked about buying some cheap clothing. This incident Mr. DeWitt could not recall. He did not know Graham. He never saw Borean have a razor but Borean had used his razor sometimes when he worked for him. He knew Borean went to the barber shop at times.

Mr. DeWitt could not identify either of the razors shown. He never saw either of them before. So far as he could recall he never saw Ronk and Borean talk together. Mr. DeWitt formerly resided at Milton and knew practically no one in Marlborough until he moved to Marlborough to reside.

Other witnesses who had been expected at the hearing had been impossible to reach. Borean and Burns who were examined at the last hearing on December 21 failed to put in an appearance Wednesday although notified to appear at the adjourned hearing by the coroner.

The inquest was adjourned until 2 o'clock on January 18.

British Submarine Rammed by Battleship During Naval Maneuvers Eleven Miles Off Portland.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 10.—The British submarine L-24 was sunk off Portland today with the loss of all on board.

The L-24 went down after a collision with another vessel during naval maneuvers.

Up to five-thirty this afternoon the Admiralty had not been advised how many persons were on board the lost submarine.

The L-24 was built in 1919 and normally carried a crew of 28 officers and men.

Other vessels from the fleet rushed at top speed to the point where the L-24 was seen to disappear. Efforts were made to raise the submarine, but without success. It was not known if the hatches were open or closed when the craft sank.

It was reported that the British battleship Resolution had rammed the submarine, sinking it at once.

There are 14 other submarines from the Atlantic fleet participating in the maneuvers 11 miles off shore.

State Troopers' Annual Report

A Tribute to Former Superintendent Chandler—14,106 Arrests and 91 Per Cent Convictions—Motor Vehicle and Liquor Laws Most Often Violated.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 10 (Special).—Paying a high tribute to the services of Lt. Col. George F. Chandler of Kingston, who recently resigned as the commandant of the New York State Troopers, Captain John Adams Warner, the new commandant, yesterday filed his annual report with the legislature.

"The report of the achievements of this department for the year just passed is submitted under the name of the superintendent who has been in office at this time but a few weeks," writes Captain Warner. "The work here accounted for was carried on under the administration of the man who organized the New York State Police and developed it to its present high efficiency."

Captain Warner then adds that although the state may have abated in its service, "it can have none more loyal to the principles on which this department is founded or who will feel more deeply his duty to the great state of New York whose servant he is proud to be."

The report shows that the number of arrests for the past year by the State Police was 14,106 of which 12,936 convictions were obtained. There are 791 cases pending. This table shows that the percentage of convictions was 91. But 3 per cent of the arrests resulted in a discharge of prisoners.

Property recovered during the past year by the State Police totaled in value, $550,579.92, while the amount of fines collected was $146,021.38. The police made 13,992 investigations without arrests and patrolled 2,078,158 miles.

It is also shown in the report that the largest number of crimes called to the attention of the State Police was in connection with the motor vehicle law, there having been 4,772 of these cases.

Liquor violations investigated, numbered 252 and murder cases numbered 13, while 814 tramps were gathered in and 521 cases of larceny were called to the attention of the gray garbed troopers.

Attention is called in the report to the great benefit to the State Police of the disability benefits law, which provides an allowance of a trooper's half pay to the widow or dependent minor with maintenance allowance and half pay during disability.

Another law declared to be of great benefit also was the one authorizing the state to acquire the barracks at Batavia, Malone, Sidney, Oneida and Troy.

RHINELAND SEPARATIST LEADER IS KILLED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Speyer, Germany, Jan. 10.—The Separatist government in the Rhine-land Palatinate today proclaimed a state of siege, following an outbreak of shooting in a restaurant when four persons, including Heinz Orbs, leader of the secessionists, were killed. Three other persons were wounded. All were shot while dining in a restaurant last night.

Egyptian Officials Wroth.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 10.—The Egyptian government today decided to censor dispatches from Luxor to London Times because an official communiqué said that Tut-Ankh-Amen's mummy would remain in the tomb because King George, England, desired it. This statement incensed the Egyptian officials.

Man Who Knows Talks of "Stripes"

Eytting, Former Prisoner in Arizona, Tells Rotarians Criminals Should Be Discharged When and If Cured.

Speaking from experience, observation and study of the subject, Louis Victor Eytting spoke on "Stripes" before the Rotary Club at its regular luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday, pointing out briefly some of the defects of the prison system by which a man instead of being reformed becomes a "repeater," and outlining a program by which mental defectives will be segregated and the man who is a social being will be given a chance.

Mr. Eytting's story reads more like romance than fact. He was convicted in Arizona of murder which he claims he never committed, the charge being that he chloroformed a man physically his superior, in an open buggy, on the desert. He was sentenced to life imprisonment but on New Year's day of 1923 he was released. When taken to the Arizona prison to serve his life sentence he was told he had tuberculosis and could not live more than two months. Prison fare even for sick patients was poor and he thought of means of getting some little luxuries, such as mosquito netting for windows, etc. He noticed that prisoners made small trips to sell to visitors and conceived the idea of creating a market for such things in the outside world. His letters to interested people in the prisoners' products were of such effectiveness that prison manufacture became a business. The letters attracted the attention of big advertising concerns, and while in prison he conducted from his cell a magazine devoted to advertising. Upon his release he was employed by a big New York advertising agency.

Addressing the Rotarians, Mr. Eytting said:

"Mr. Warden and fellow prisoners: I really do not use that salutation because of an acquaintance of twenty-two years with a prison, but because you are members of Rotary and prisoners—you are prisoners to your duty, and your duty is to give the best that is in you not only to your fellow Rotarians but to society, and may you never be pardoned from the perspective of that duty."

For eleven years in the tuberculosis ward of a prison in Arizona, said Mr. Eytting, he sat beside a window through which streamed a ray of sunlight which illuminated a leather motto which said, in Latin, "The penitents must who serves best."

His own experience had shown him there were two angles to the motto; it depended upon the place from which it was viewed, but in every case the meaning was the same.

Personally, he felt that he was not a public speaker, and he never had had much opportunity for it. In entering one prison he had been asked by the prison warden whether he understood more than one language and answered that he had only a smattering of several languages. "You know but one language," said the warden, "and you're supposed to be silent in that." But he had tried to write and had produced two books; a third would be produced shortly. It had been said that the art of public speaking was to bring a smile to the faces of the audience, and if such an announcement would induce a smile, he was glad to announce that a copy of his third publication would be mailed free of charge upon written request to the Lee Paper Company, Vicksburg, Michigan.

"The subject on which you have announced I will speak is 'Stripes,'" said Mr. Eytting. "I ought to know more about stripes than anyone else here for I have worn them both sartorially and cutaneously. Cutaneously, I have worn them from the broad of my back to my knees, until the flesh which remained was quivering, and I wore them because I had committed the offense of whispering to a fellow prisoner in line. And I have been suspended by my arms, with a ball attached to my feet, for thirty days, for having passed a cigarette to another prisoner who occupied the next cell. When they lowered me at the end of thirty days I could wear neither coat nor shoes; my shoulders were swollen so they were bigger than my legs."

"You have probably been inexpressibly shocked by the exposure of conditions which were disclosed in the Florida penal camp, but let me tell you that we of the North have no right to point the finger of scorn, for on the very day that the legislature of the state of Florida forever abolished capital punishment for certain offenses in that state, the body of a nineteen year old boy was shipped into Pensacola, and when the parents opened the lid of the casket to take a farewell look at their boy they drew back in horror when they saw that his brains had oozed out upon the satin pillow, for that boy, nineteen years old, had been beaten to death in a Michigan penal institution."

"Not long ago I visited my native state of Ohio and naturally I went back to visit the cell I had occupied in the Ohio Penitentiary—an institution which had been the home of Al Jennings and O. Henry. And while there I unearthed a document reporting conditions in a boys' industrial school. It was a report so damnable that it dared not be printed and could not be carried through the mail."

"One incident reported in that school was that of a nine year old boy who had had an eleven pound ball bolted to his leg and compelled to wear it until the flesh had mortified. The man who ordered that punishment was a speaker last September."

New Cold Wave Coming This Way

Zero Expected in Chicago on Friday With Snow to Follow the Coming of the Cold.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—A new cold wave sweeping down from the northwest was due reach the Great Lakes today in its march East and South. Snow was scheduled to follow in the footsteps of the drop.

The thermometer will not approach the mark set in the recent sub-zero spell, when 40 below was reached in northwestern states and the coldest weather in 20 years prevailed in Chicago, but probably will reach zero tomorrow night here, it was said.

The present stage of high barometer pressure originated along the Mackenzie river in Western Canada, where there were no observation stations to give warning.

The preceding drop originated in Alaska where 12 stations gave instant warning of weather changes by wireless. Three stations along the Mackenzie river at Fort McMurray, Fort Norman and Simpson, are planned by the Canadian government, it was said.

Shriners' Ball Entertainment

Includes the Strand Quartet, Heard by Radio Fans—Decorating and Other Committees Busy—Sale of Tickets Indicates Large Crowd.

The music and entertainment committee of the Kingston Shriners' Association has booked for the Shriners' dance, which will be held at the armory on Tuesday evening, January 22, the Manhattan Ramblers 12, the Strand Male Quartet and Woodward & Morrissey.

The Manhattan Ramblers 12 will furnish the music for the entire evening for dancing and come highly recommended.

Radio fans will recognize the Strand Quartet, which is one of the finest in the country today, singing both popular jazz and the high class numbers. To radio fans this quartet is known both as the Strand Quartet and also as the American Chicle Company Quartet and sing for many of the phonograph companies under the name of the National Quartet.

This so far consists of the entertainment program which is always a feature of the annual Shriners' dance and entertainment. Another number will be added later. The committee at the present time is working to get another high class attraction and the result will be announced in a few days as soon as arrangements have been completed.

Those who do not intend to participate in the dancing will be well entertained and the Shriners are making every effort to put on one of the best evening's entertainments possible.

Committees having in charge the details of the affair are working and decorations this year will surpass all past Shriners' events. The proceeds of the dance will be devoted to the use of the Industrial Home in this city.

Tickets are selling fast and from all accounts the attendance will be large. A number of out of town Shriners will attend, making the night a gala one.

Federals Move on Vera Cruz

Rebels Fall Back Before 10,000 Men Under Martinez. Preceded by Bombing Planes.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mexico City, Jan. 10.—More than 10,000 federal troops under General Eugenio Martinez began their "on to Vera Cruz" march today. San Marcos, in the state of Tlaxcala, is being used as the federal base of operations.

Federal airplanes preceded the advance, dropping bombs upon the rebel positions.

According to advices received by War Secretary Serrano, the rebels did not give battle but retired before the federal advance.

Serrano said the advance against the rebels on the Jalisco front would be undertaken immediately. Upwards of 15,000 federal soldiers under personal command of General Obregon will take part in the movement on the western front.

Five hundred automobile trucks have been sent up to the western front to assist the overland movement.

GOLD RUSH IN ALASKA DUE TO MILD WEATHER

Many Claims Are Staked to Be Worked in the Spring by Prospectors.

Phenomenal weather, which took the form of warm chinook winds in the higher regions, has resulted in a stampede of prospectors to adjacent hills near Anchorage, Alaska, where they have staked many claims to be worked for placer gold in the spring.

The warm winds uncovered immense deposits of gravel, which were swept down to the rivers, leaving a new terrain exposed. Prospectors rejoice, thawing at great depths which were locked in perpetual ice. They believe that nature thus has left open rich auriferous gravels hitherto sealed.

On the west side of the Turnagain Arm an avalanche 100 feet wide and a mile long rushed down a mountain, uprooting immense trees and cutting deep into the soil. Three ledges rich in quartz were revealed. The creeks of that region had given up placer gold in the past, and the news of the big slide sent every unattached man with an outfit into the mountainous region above the Arm. Claims were staked, and since winter was closing in, the prospectors left to return at the first thawing of spring.

The chinooks prolonged the open season in the hills a month or more. It is predicted that this will result in an unusually early spring, as the usual early freeze-up was lacking and the blankets of snow prevented deep freezing later.

Long-time residents of Alaska believe that climatic conditions are undergoing a general change. They point to the recent deluge that put the southern division of the Alaska railroad out of commission for 20 days. The deluge, accompanied by a warm gale, denuded even the mountain peaks of snow. It has been customary for the first heavy snows to lie all winter. But this season, in southwestern Alaska, several times snow fell in quantities only to be melted again. Winter seemed reluctant to take hold.

REWARDS TO FRENCH DADS

Mighty-Eight Fathers of Large Families Honored.

Eighty-eight fathers of families numbering from ten to thirteen children are to receive premiums of 25,000 francs from the French academy. It was decided at the academy annual meeting held in Paris, France, recently. Of this total 55 are farmers or farm workers, Mechanix and carpenters, with four each, come next, and the balance is made up of manual workers, with the exception of two professors, who are the sole representatives of the intellectuals on the list.

The academy also granted prizes of 10,000 francs each to 1,200 fathers of families of from six to nine children, thus distributing more than $3,000,000 francs from the foundation for the purpose of encouraging an increased birth rate, provided for by M. Cognac, a wealthy department store owner of Paris, who set aside 25,000,000 francs of his fortune to recompense deserving families of large size.

The academy also awarded large amounts to humble performers of unheralded deeds of abnegation and charity.

Marcel Prevost announced that the prize for faithful service in the cause of the French language abroad was awarded to the Laval university at Quebec, Canada.

Doesn't it give you a pain when after you are courteous enough to up and for a woman with a foreign voice, she gets up and she says, "Come in, there's no one here."

Maw Creek says "The neighbors all piled in Thursday to see my birthday and everybody brought baskets. It was supposed to be a surprise on me, but I knew something was up on account of it taking a bath."

It is not dying penniless that warms most people; it is having to die that way.

What This Country Needs.
What this country needs is not a new birth of freedom, but the old fashioned 32 lower berth.

What this country needs is more liberty, but less people who take liberties with our liberty.

What this country needs is not job for every man, but a real job for every job.

What this country needs is to get more from the taxes.

What this country needs is more miles of territory, but no miles to the nation.

What this country needs is more young men making good, but more young men painting signs.

What this country needs is more paint on the old place and less paint on the young face.

What this country needs isn't a lower rate of interest on money, but a higher interest in work.

What this country needs is to follow the footsteps of the fathers instead of the dancing master.

There was a young man from the city who met what he thought was a kitty.

He gave it a pat, and said, "Nice little cat!" and they buried his clothes out of pity.

Our idea of a dumb flapper is the one who thought Irene Castle was a piece of architecture.

If all men liked the same type of woman wouldn't there be an overflow of food cooks and school teachers.

Ever notice that on Sunday morning when you do not have to go to work you wake up early and can't go to sleep again, and that every other morning you have an awful time getting awake?

Breadfruit.
The breadfruit, with the coconut and banana, furnishes the chief food of the natives of the Pacific islands. That is why we call it "breadfruit," because, for them, it takes the place of bread. Apart from its fruit, the tree itself is a very useful one, for, when beaten out, the inner bark forms a fine white cloth called tapa cloth.

Red Seal Records

Number	Price
(Harmonious Blacksmith (Haudel) Wanda Landowska	973 $1.50
Turkish March (Mamant) Harpichord Solo Wanda Landowska
First Victor record by Wanda Landowska, world-famous interpreter of the harpichord, precursor of the piano. Two classics sounding exactly as they did generations ago.
Waltz Menzelberg and N. Y. Philharmonic Orchestra	6427 2.00
Tales from the Vienna Woods—Waltz (Strauss) Menzelberg and N. Y. Philharmonic Orchestra
These two numbers interpret the waltz in its glory; taking it from the floor of the ballroom and carrying it to heights of rhythmic imagination and ecstasy.
Faust—Dio possente (Evea the Bravest Heart) Titta Ruffo	6429 2.00
Christoforo Colombo—Danque ho sognato? Titta Ruffo
Valentine's tender song of farewell to his sister, and the monologue, serene as faith, of Columbus just before the New World comes into view.

Melodious Instrumental

(Souvenir (Ordn-Wiedorf) Saxophone Solo Rudy Wiedorf	19167 .75
Saxarella (Wiedorf) Saxophone Solo Rudy Wiedorf
Played with wonderful delicacy of sentiment and with a variety of tone apparently ranging from flute to the cello. "Saxarella" is jazz-coloratura.

Humorous Monologue

(Will Rogers Talks to the Bankers Will Rogers	45374 1.00
Will Rogers' First Political Speech Will Rogers
You will laugh at Will Rogers' sly but good-natured slams at humanity. Spoken humor at its best.

Light Vocal Selections

(I Love You (from "Little Joe Jones") Charles Hart	19214 .75
The West, a Nest and You Lewis James
Two love-songs by these justly popular tenors, one in fox-trot and one in waltz style.
(Mamma Loves Papa, Papa Loves Mamma Jane Green with	19215 .75
Mamma Goes Where Papa Goes The Virginians
First Victor record by Jane Green. Songs of Mamma's affection for Papa; the first avows it, but the second indicates Mamma takes no chances. Jazz-blues style.

Folk Songs for Children

(Folk Songs (1) Lavender's Blue (2) I Had a Little Nut Tree (3) Golden Slumbers Kiss Your Eyes (4) Sweet Nightingale Alice Green	19062 .75
(Folk Songs (1) Going Through Lorraine (2) Praise to the Father (3) La Chuchuca (4) Boonlan Shepherd Song Alice Green
Don't forget the kiddies! Two records for educational purposes, adorably sung.

Dance Records

(Linger Awhile—Fox Trot Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19211 .75

Cantilever Shoe for Men & Women

Have You Shoe Trouble?

SOME women go on from one pair of wrong shoes to another and finally become convinced that they have serious foot trouble. It may be only "shoe trouble." Foot troubles develop gradually and you cannot find a remedy in an ordinary shoe. Nor can you find anything more than temporary relief in foot appliances. The true remedy for weak feet is to allow them to exercise—this is what the Cantilever Flexible Arch Shoe does for you. Your foot has breathing space in Cantilevers and your toes can stretch and find comfort, and yet the shoe is unusually attractive in appearance, made of the fashionable leathers and in perfect harmony with winter costumes. Come and see the Cantilever.

Low Girdle, New Fashion in Paris

Drapery and Bib and Hood Effects Are Among Styles Shown.

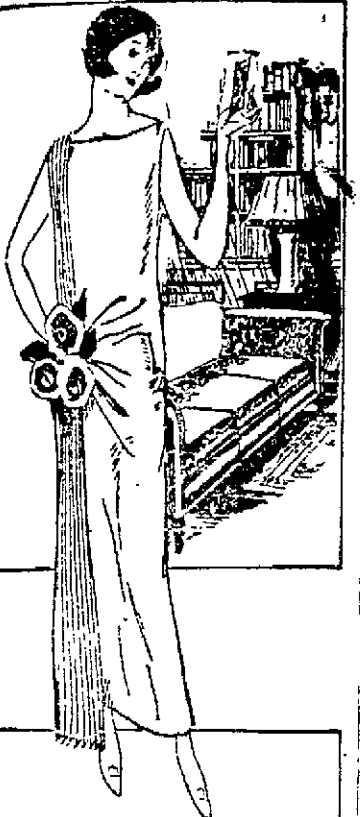

Draped draperies are claiming considerable attention. This does not mean that draped models are replacing those with flounces and tiers, but that they are used in conjunction with one another. Many of the models, notes a writer in the New York Tribune, are basically draped. There are, in addition to the drapery, ruffles, tiers, cascading panels and other effects.

Callot excels in new draped models. These are draped in a most graceful way and differ widely from the figure-hugging effects of the past.

A new Callot evening model displays with every bit of underwear or other accessories that once were indispensable to the woman's toilette. All of the dresses have little girdle to which hose supporters are attached. The dress is built on this girdle, whether it be of normal or 'low' cut, so all the fashionable elegance wears a pair of slippers, a pair of stockings and her dress.

One of Vionnet's newest models is so cut that the front forms a series of draped folds like a hood. This is done by means of a bias seam down the center front. A similar effect is worked out in a bib effect, oblong and rounding at the corners, this bib formed of alternating bands of two shades of crepe, one of which forms the remainder of the dress.

Cheruit shows her ingenious use of drapery in a gown in which she strikingly emphasizes the simplicity of the water mode, which, in this case, is nothing more than a width of velvet in brilliant rose color passed around the figure, with an armhole on one side.

Cheruit Model of Rose-Colored Velvet Draped Over Silk Foundation Which Has Plaited Section of Silver Tulle at Right Side.

There the velvet does not meet at the right side a plaited panel of silver tulle revealed. The two edges of the velvet are seemingly drawn together and held in place by three large artificial roses. In fastening the panel it is slightly draped over the hips and across the stomach. Glimpses of the light-fitting foundation of rose-colored tulle are revealed as the wearer moves.

Many Graceful Styles in New Dance Attire

A social world dancing madly has called for such evening gowns as challenge the creative genius of fashion artists, foreign and American, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times. Almost every form of entertainment, day or night, now resolves itself into a dance, and the debuts and countless other activities of the younger set have brought out the most artistic expressions of dancing frocks shown in many seasons.

Quite early the Parisian designers, forecasting a gay jeunesse season, sent out a variety of models, which were quickly absorbed and translated into many charming versions. The houses from which usually come the best things in youthful dress—Vionnet, Jenny Miller, Lanvin, Lenit and Cheruit—have established standards, and their latest models are engaging juvenile style, full of airy grace and beauty. Even the courtierruses who represent modes of more formality, conspicuous collar, have worked out delightful frocks for the dance that will be equally popular with the debutante and the young matron.

In this colorful season of beautiful silks and satins, rich brocades and lace, inspiration is not lacking, and youth is always an alluring ideal. Fashion has drawn far away from the simple floating draperies of chiffon that characterized the evening gowns for two or three seasons past; these look like the negligees of the present day. Everything has become more elaborate, in a way, though lines still follow the same. Individuality is now given the widest expression.

Wide Collars. Wide cavalier collars of white satin with white trimmings with lace and embroidery are very effective on black and white gowns.

That's Different. "You are charged with being a deserter, having left your wife," says the facts of the case true? "No, your honor, I am not a deserter. Just a refugee."—Punch

Good Looks and Charm Found in All Women

Do you feel that nearly every woman in the world is more beautiful than you, and more charming? Do you get the blues over your unpopularity with men? Do you act the part of a drab and lowly earthworm when you venture into your employer's office to ask for a raise in pay?

Then—turn over a new leaf! Stop worrying over the charms you think you lack. And, along with your powders, rouges and face creams, build up a serene belief in the good looks you undeniably possess.

This is the counsel given in the Designer Magazine by a famous New York physician who is visited annually by hundreds of patients in search of relief from troublesome nerves. Among these there are women whose self-confidence is shattered because of their anxiety over real or fancied defects in their personal appearance.

"The woman who believes she is homely is always much better looking than she thinks she is," he said.

"Women who imagine they aren't as beautiful as other women—the world is full of them," he said. "They suffer black miseries over their pimples, moles, freckles, big feet, stubby fingers, the shape of their noses, the size of their hands, the color of their skin. Their sensitiveness over their supposed ugliness hurts so much that often they cannot speak of it—not to their husbands, their mothers, their most trusted friends.

"The woman who feels as ugly as a mud fence should take herself in hand. She can, if she gives her horse sense a chance, throw off her delusion of ugliness. Probably she isn't conspicuously plain. It's her state of mind that needs improving.

"Women who think they are frights rate well in looks with their sisters who get into the thick of the fun at dances, who are elected to office in their clubs, or who land good jobs," he explained. "They're not Ugly Ducklings; but they can't shake off the shrinking Ugly Duckling feeling. They take a back seat, for they haven't enough confidence in their beauty or their cleverness to warrant pushing themselves ahead.

"Of such women we say: 'She is capable, but she lacks faith in herself.' 'She would be a charming hostess but for her shyness.' 'She could hold that job if she had nerve.' "I haven't the manner of a queen or the curls of a Mary Pickford, so I won't play,' their behavior says as plainly as words."

Black Continues to Be One of Favored Colors

It might be said, considering the rarity of front and back trimmings on the new hats, that ornamentation is almost entirely a side issue; certainly, it is very dashing. Often it occurs on both sides, with balanced effect. Trimming is, in the main, drooping rather than upstanding, and seems to have no idea of where to stop once it begins trailing. Very chic are both the long uncurled ostrich plume which takes a headlong leap off the side of practically any sort of small hat and the ribbon of even longer claims which becomes a scarf.

Despite the preference each designer has for a particular color, it is plain that black continues to be the smartest of them all. Brown and black, relieved by bright colors, are very respectably represented in most of the collections, and greens and reds are not without noticeable precedent.

Vogue of Jersey.

It is not surprising that the jersey frock introduced rather tentatively early in the season should have caught the feminine fancy, for there is a naive boyishness about its slim, straight lines, its plain little collar and cuffs of lines and in the subdued tones of its coloring that is extraordinarily attractive. For the schoolgirl and her sister of college age a frock of this type is ideal and one finds them featured by shops that make a specialty of youthful fashions.

FIRES IN KINGSTON

It is a startling fact that the largest number of fires in this city during 1923 was the result of negligence on the part of the owners whose property was damaged or destroyed. A total of thirty-seven fires having been caused by neglect of chimneys. Thirty-four fires were of the variety designated as "chimney fires" and were due to defective chimneys and one to an overloaded chimney. No matter whether the properties where these fires occurred were occupied by owner or tenant it was the duty of the owner to see that chimneys were in good condition that they were clean. Chimney fires seldom if ever occur in chimneys that are clean but while the rest of the average house undergoes the housecleaning process twice a year at least the chimney rarely receives the attention it deserves. So the property owner may well look to his own neglect before criticizing the boy who lit the matches or the boy who lit the matches.

It is impossible for anyone to say that the makers of cigarettes which caused even fires in Kingston during 1923 were the cause of confessions when they were boys, just as it is impossible to tell that cigarette fires in future years will be caused by the same boy who lit the matches who caused seven fires in the city during the same period. It is a coincidence only that cigarette fires were caused by matches, and it is a coincidence only that cigarette fires should have caused the same number of fires as were caused by the boy who lit the matches.

The increasing use of motor cars and gasoline naturally would tend to an increase in fires but the number of automobile fires which called out the fire department during the year was only fifteen while gasoline ignition called out the department only nine times. Insurance companies are complaining of the number of motor cars destroyed by fire through carelessness but such complaints do not apply to Kingston city limits, what may occur outside of it is another matter. The thoroughness with which investigations are conducted is attested by the fact that only five fires during 1923 were of unknown origin.

With continued efficiency which held fire losses down to a total of $72,950 in which a fire loss of $1,570 was not insured, Kingston ought to reap the benefit of lower rates. The total insurance on the buildings and contents where the fires occurred amounted to $8,677,750 from that figure may be estimated the total amount of insurance carried on buildings and their contents in the entire city and those who are familiar with insurance premiums can figure the amount of premiums which Kingstonians are paying to the companies annually. In past years the city was urged to establish and maintain an efficient fire department or else insurance rates would be increased. With the showing made during 1923, is it not just to ask that a readjustment of rates be made which will be more favorable to the citizens?

CONGRESS AND LEAP YEAR

An unfortunate citizen has written to the member of Congress denouncing leap year and asking for the abolition of that pernicious institution as follows: "Twelve years ago I was a single man happy and free. Then one night I was invited to the home of a woman friend. He told me I needed somebody to take care of me and that she was going to do it. So she carried me before a parson, and now I can't call my soul my own. This could never have happened if it had not been for leap year. Do away with it so that others won't be caught in my trap, and you will be doing a real service."

If the Congressman replied he doubtless pointed out that even a constitutional amendment would be powerless in this connection, owing to the fact that it is impossible to bring our even division of years into exact harmony with the mechanism of our solar system and that a recurring leap year is necessary to keep the calendar straight. He might well have added that we have a good many constitutional amendments already and that not all of them are completely successful in what they undertake to ordain or abolish.

Moreover the unhappy petitioner does not dispute a great amount of sympathy. Leap year is supposed to confer on women the right to propose for marriage, it inevitably confers on men the right to accept or reject an offer of marriage. The unhappy petitioner who appears to have fallen into the "trap" with his eyes open might well be reminded of an old proverb to the effect that he who makes his own bed must expect to lie in it.

That Body of Yours

A SIMPLE LESSON

There was an interesting article in the paper the other day regarding a new industry established in Holland.

Some experiments had discovered that by a process of heat and pressure could transform soft wood into hard wood.

The process is the wood under in closed the heat and water spurs were thus brought closer together making a beautiful grain just like hard wood.

I could not help but think that the very same process, heat and pressure, is exactly what is used to make hard turn muscle out of soft, fat flesh in the human body.

And so a well developed man will show the same beautiful grain muscle as is shown in the wood. Both are objects of strength and beauty.

Now, what do I mean by heat and pressure applied to the body? Well, heat is the little fire globules that cover and are in around the muscles, and the muscle changes in its natural form, fibres.

This heating up can be done by the exercise heat of a fire, a bath and other mechanical devices or by more efficient methods of exercise. When you exercise the first thing you notice is the increase in the heat of the body.

But exercise goes further. It actually supplies the pressure also in that part of your body which is fat and squashes the little fat globules out of existence.

I have known many cases where the simple exercise of lying on the back and using both leg slowly, knees straight, to a bench almost at right angles to the body a dozen times, twice a day, has reduced the waist line two or three inches in one month.

Where the exercise is kept up for some weeks the fat and globules muscles underneath can be felt by the hand and in a few months the actual muscles themselves will show through the skin.

These muscles show up as three distinct ridges across the abdomen and resemble the corrugations on a wish-bone.

This simple squeezing or exercising of any part of the body will give the same results.

Simply bending or squeezing the forearm of your arm will take the fat off the arms.

Sitting down on the heels and pressing the feet against the thighs will remove the surplus fat from the loins.

Bending the neck will remove double chins. It is all very simple and will bring results every time.

How To Remove
Tobacco Stains
from Teeth
—In Only Three Minutes

No More Stains
on Children's Teeth

No more dark, discolored, spotted or stained teeth. Bleachodent Combination coats only a few cents and removes unsightly stains in three minutes at home. Leaves teeth flashing white, lustrous clean. Recommended everywhere as quicker, surer, safer than old harmful, dangerous scouring. Fine for children's soft, sensitive teeth. No effect on enamel as it's mild ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains—not on enamel. Bleachodent Combination contains liquid to loosen stain coats and special paste which gently removes them. Paste keeps new stains from forming. Be sure to ask for Bleachodent Combination.

No need now for tobacco stains on teeth. Bleachodent Combination bleaches away stains in three minutes—leaving the teeth sparkling, clean and lustrous. Consists of a mild safe liquid and a new kind of paste. Just brush teeth with few drops of liquid—then use paste—and note the quick results. Tobacco and other stains disappear almost "while you wait." You will be amazed at the results of the very first application. Your teeth will be even whiter than with ten times the amount of scouring with old-fashioned methods. Does not affect enamel as its safe, mild ingredients are especially combined to act only on surface stains—not on the enamel itself.

Nothing spoils a child's whole appearance quicker than stained, dull or yellowish teeth. But now children can have teeth that are perfectly clear and flashing white and keep them that way. For Bleachodent Combination instantly dissolves away teeth stains, giving dull, dingy teeth a beautiful sparkle and whiteness. Consists of a mild safe liquid which curdles or loosens the staining substances, so that they may be instantly removed by a new kind of paste. Even most unsightly stains usually disappear with first few applications of Bleachodent Combination. Does not affect enamel as its mild ingredients are especially designed to act only on surface stains.

Bleachodent Combination is sold at all good dealers, such as:

Fire Alarm Supt.
Submits ReportMarshall G. Miller Files Report of Work Accomplished During 1923
—He Calls Attention to Need of a New Car to Carry on Work Successfully.

At the annual meeting of the board of fire commissioners held Tuesday evening, Marshall G. Miller, superintendent of the fire alarm system, submitted the following report of the work done during the past year. The report follows:

In accordance with Article 5, Rule 1, of the department's book of rules, I herewith submit my annual report for the year ending December 31, 1923.

Part 1—New Work, Extensions and System Improvements.

The all underground circuit has been extended from the corner of Pearl street and Clinton avenue through Pearl street to the corner of Wall and Pearl streets, and from Fair and Pearl streets through Fair street to the Wiltwyck Fire Station. These extensions of this circuit being all in our standard heavy sheathed lead covered cable and of modern and up to date construction, which eliminates this circuit from any contact with high powered electric lines, lightning or sleet storms. Two of the most important boxes, Box 215, near St. Joseph's School, and Box 86, in the business district, have been put on this circuit as well as the Wiltwyck Fire Station. The two above mentioned boxes have been put on modern steel fire alarm pedestals, back from the curb, out of the way of the automobiles. The new proposed up town circuit has been run through the cable from the central office to the corner of Pearl and Green streets, and will leave on it about half of the load of the present up town circuit, which is loaded to capacity now. This will make two standard aerial circuits up town. In making this extension to the underground circuit it was necessary to run an iron pipe duct from the street manhole on Fair street in front of the post office to the cellar of Wiltwyck Fire Station, a distance of 140 feet, and also to run ducts from the pedestals of Boxes Nos. 86 and 215 to the manhole in the street. This work was done, while the street department was repaving the street surfaces with Whillite, which was a much needed improvement. In years past if the present up town circuit opened it threw up town section out without fire protection, but with two circuits up town this section still has protection if one circuit should go out of commission.

A new circuit has been added to the system covering the territory between the old Circuit No. 1, which lies east of Broadway and down as far as East Chester street, about eight miles in length, and old Circuit No. 2, which covered all of the North Rondout section and the Ponckhockie section of the city as far as Broadway, down town, which was about nine miles in length. This new circuit is approximately five miles in length and takes in the North Rondout section and that section in the vicinity of Clifton avenue and East Chester street. This extension makes three fair sized circuits out of two circuits that were too long.

The following is a list of new fire alarm box locations installed during the past year:

Box 14, corner Lindsley avenue and East Union street; plain Gardiner non-int. type of box.

Box 213, corner Lucas avenue and Lafayette avenue; plain Gardiner non-int. type of box.

Box 232, on Taylor street near Washington avenue; plain Gardiner non-int. type of box.

Box 115, East Chester street and Cassidy street; plain Gardiner non-int. type of box.

Box 215, corner Wall and Pearl streets; latest type of nonpareil succession type of box.

Part 2—Replacements, Reconstructed Work.

The old obsolete terminal box at the corner of East Chester street and Broadway, which was used for both police signal and fire alarm cable outlets, and which was installed when the fire alarm was first put in some twenty odd years ago, has been replaced and relocated on the pole. This old terminal box had given the system considerable trouble in the past three years.

The terminal pole was rotted off at the butt and became dangerous. This was reset and new arms and dead ends were made, making a standard dead end pole which should not give any trouble for some years to come.

Five sections of line were reconstructed on Murray street, where the poles were moved on account of the widening of Murray street at this spot.

Four sections of line were rebuilt at the corner of Wall street and St. James street, where the Kingston Gas and Electric Co. rearranged its poles to clear trees.

At the corner of Wall and Main streets where the Kingston Gas and Electric Co. removed a pole the loop of Box 93 was rebuilt and relocated. On O'Neil street, between Smith avenue and Manor avenue, the line was moved from the top of the poles down on the police department's cross arm to clear high tension wires and on account of the poles all being reset by the Kingston Gas and Electric Co.

Under your instruction of June 25, the Cornell Fire Station was rewired with conduct and B-X cable and new lighting fixtures installed, making the inside wiring comply with the modern electrical codes and a much needed improvement. Box No. 82 was reset and placed in a safe position on the pole to protect it from skidding automobiles.

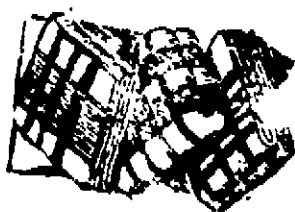

The following boxes have been reset and new wire entrances run: Box 44, 63, 96, 53, 41, 114, 112, 36.

Part 3—Open Fire Alarm Circuits During Year.

We have had eleven open circuits during the year past, as follows:

Circuit 6, April 7, claybank slide at Kingston Point.

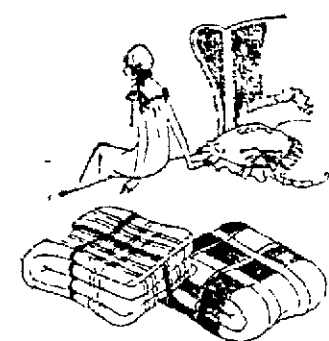

Circuit 2, May 3, lightning blew

FOSSILS FOUND IN "BAD LANDS"

Many Prehistoric Animals Discovered in South Dakota.

FIND BONES OF GIANT PIGS

Digging up tombs of the Pharaohs of Egypt is slow work compared with the sport of unearthing bones of extinct animals right here in the United States, where millions of hungry mosquitoes and legions of active rattlesnakes supply the excitement. This, at any rate, is the opinion of several New York university students who have just returned from a paleontological expedition into the Big Bad Lands of South Dakota.

This trip was the first of its kind ever made by New York university students and was directed by Professor L. Alfred Mannhardt, head of the biology department of Washington Square college, which is the co-educational school of arts and science located in Washington square. The fossils which were found will be used as a demonstration collection for students of 1925.

Dug Through Hard Clay.

Besides Professor Mannhardt, three students and one instructor made up the party. Contrary to the usual conception of the kind of digging tools used for such work, they armed themselves with hammers and cold chisels, instead of picks and shovels. The use of such tools would seem to indicate that they expected to dig through solid rock. As a matter of fact, it was only clay, but very hard sun-baked clay, that dulled the edge of their chisels in short order.

Over 2,300 pounds of fossil remains were collected by the party after four weeks' active work. Three specimens, representing six different groups of prehistoric animals, are as follows: Titanotheres, Rodents, Oredonts, Entelodonts, fossil horses and rhinoceroses.

Battle Creek canyon was chosen by Professor Mannhardt as the best possible hunting grounds. It is located in the center of the Bad Lands of South Dakota. With this location as their headquarters, side trips were made to Cuny basin, Cedar Creek canyon and Fog basin.

According to Professor Mannhardt, the Bad Lands are an excellent collecting place for such fossils as can be found now. This is due to the nature of the country, which is a series of high ridges and gullies almost entirely bare of vegetation. The ridges are from 200 to 300 feet high and cut into fantastic shapes and figures. The topography was formerly a rolling tableland, but centuries of erosion have worn it down until it presents a weird and unusual appearance today. The soil is made up of light-colored and sandy clay, with layers of soft sandstone. The few but heavy rainstorms cut deeper into the surface every year, with the result that traces of fossils are found much nearer the surface than they otherwise would be. Sometimes they are even entirely exposed to the weather.

Methods Used to Find Fossils. "Collecting specimens is not merely a matter of walking around and picking up bones as in a bone yard," said Professor Mannhardt. "Neither do you go out and dig haphazardly wherever you happen to feel the urge. One of the best indications of buried fossils is the presence of fragments on the surface. Then the real hard work begins. Great care must be taken in chiseling in order not to chip away at the specimens while digging them out."

"Stopovers were made on the trip West to examine the fossil collections of the Carnegie museum in Pittsburgh and the Field museum in Chicago. Aside from changing trains several times between Chicago and Seattle, S. D., the journey was without adventure. Upon arriving in Seattle, the nearest railroad station to Battle Creek canyon, we bought all our necessary supplies. These consisted of a team of horses, a mountain wagon, saddle horses and enough food to last a month.

"But no one told us to buy citronella, so we were entirely unprepared to meet the countless hordes of mosquitoes that swarmed around us. We discovered that the few pools of water standing after the rainstorms served as excellent breeding grounds, and from their cannibalistic manners we concluded that food was scarce."

"The rattlesnakes were anticipated. One of the students in the party, however, sat down one day most unexpectedly alongside a large rattler. We all carried sticks for catching them, but not having his with him at the time, he stood up and put his foot on the snake's head, while he picked it up. We wore heavy high-topped leather shoes, so it was perfectly safe to catch the snake in this fashion. Along with several other good specimens, it was brought back alive for laboratory observation."

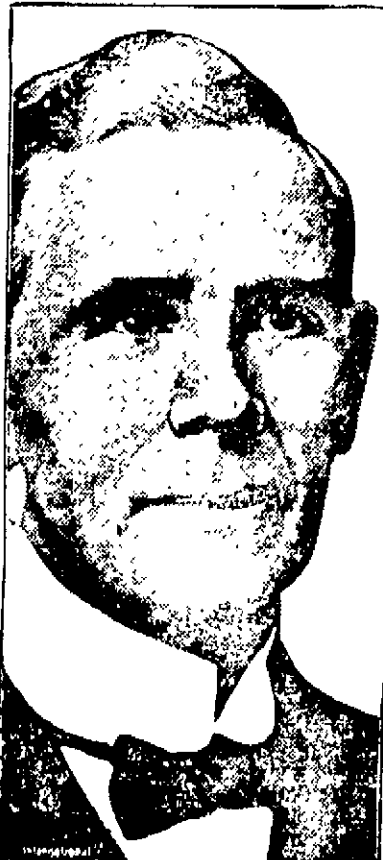

"Upon reaching camp the first thing we did was to pitch our tents and make ourselves as comfortable as the heat and the mosquitoes would permit. The next day we started off on a scouting expedition on horseback. After locating several good places for work, we settled down to routine collecting. "Every day we covered five miles or more on foot; when on horseback we covered as many as forty miles a day. Erosion takes place so rapidly in the 'Bad Lands' that plant life can't keep up with it. The result is that vegetation is found only on the mesa. This is quite sparse, but neighboring ranches use it for wintering weak cattle."

"Estimates of cowboys show that several hundred of these cattle die every year, and their carcasses are left lying out on the ground. Within a year or two very few, if any, of these skeletons will be found complete. If the coyotes and other carnivorous animals do not disturb the bodies, the skeletons will be scattered in a relatively short time by the few but heavy rainstorms. This situation was much exaggerated in past ages, so that the chances of an animal becoming fossilized were relatively small. For this same reason skeletons are rarely found intact."

"The rodent fossils that we found are perhaps the most valuable from a scientific viewpoint. But the specimens of Titanotheres are the most impressive. These animals resemble the rhinoceros in many ways. "The greatest number of fossils found belonged to the family of Oredonts. They were an extinct ancestral group of animals to which have been attributed some of the characteristics of the camel, deer and hog. They were very numerous in that part of the country in prehistoric times. Skulls and other parts of fossil horses, Entelodonts (giant pigs), and rhinoceroses completed the collection."

"Although the temperature during the middle of the day averaged a hundred or more, the heat was not unbearable. During that time we rested or catalogued our specimens and prepared them for shipment. Wet cloths soaked in flour paste were used for wrapping. The fossils were then packed in cases with hay all around them to prevent breakage. Some of the specimens were very brittle and others, especially the rodent skulls, were particularly fragile. They all arrived in good shape, however, and are being prepared for exhibition in the biology laboratory in Washington Square college."—New York Times.

SAYS LATE KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND WAS FATHER

Above is pictured Henry Holden Colpus, penniless, sick and almost completely deaf, who claims to be the natural son of the late King Edward of England and half-brother of King George. Colpus was found in an obscure Portland (Me.) boarding house, and on questioning him it was learned he had seals bearing the crest and arms of the English royal family. Colpus asserts that King Edward, when the prince of Wales, was married to his mother, Eliza Holden, by a minister of the Church of England in 1862. Colpus was born in 1863; his mother married George Colpus several years after the child was born. Colpus has been living in the United States for many years, serving under General Lee during the Civil war, and also with Col. Theodore Roosevelt's famous Rough Riders during the Spanish-American war.

In King Tut's Time.
Folks in King Tut's time were not so slow. Carl Mitman, in cataloging the ship models in his department of the Smithsonian Institution, points out that Egyptians built boat hulls of the correct form for speed nearly 4,000 years before modern scientific designers arrived at the same conclusions. Vikings had the right idea and Malay pirates had the wave-line theory of construction down to perfection when English and American sailboats were clumsy tubs.

BREAKING THE ICE

"I've just heard an expression which interested me greatly," said Mr. Sun.

"Tell it to us, please, Mr. Sun," said the Sun Fairies. "We wonder whether you have ever heard the expression or not."

"This was it," said Mr. Sun. "Some people were planning a party. And they suggested to each other all sorts of things which would make the party start off with a vim and dash and all that sort of thing."

"They said that when people first got together at a party, or anything like that, they were apt to be a little shy at first."

"Later on the guests would be able to amuse themselves and each other and have a beautiful time, but at first these people were making all sorts of plans for games and pleasures which would get everyone started right off in having a good time."

"They were planning to arrange spiders over the house and gave each one a spiderweb to unravel."

"They wound the balls of twine in and about the legs of tables and chairs, and all over objects which would not easily fall off or break. For the one who got to the end of the spiderweb first won a prize, and toward the end it was apt to get very exciting, as one could see the end of one's web in sight."

"And when hurrying something was apt to be broken, so the safe way for the ones spinning the webs in the first place to see that they wound them about good strong objects."

"Yes, I heard them explaining all of this."

"But they said the spiderwebs—which really meant balls of string wound about things for the guests to unwind as fast as they could and wind up again—would start everything going well."

"And then came the expression which I thought was so interesting."

"Yes," said the Sun Fairies, "we are ready to hear it."

"They said," Mr. Sun continued, "that by doing this they would break the ice."

"What?" the Sun Fairies exclaimed. "We have never heard that expression."

"Neither had I," said Mr. Sun. "And I was puzzled as to the meaning of it for some time. I thought I would never understand it."

"Did you finally?" the Sun Fairies asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Sun, "I kept looking in the window and paying attention, and at last it was explained so that I understood."

"You see, at first I was particularly puzzled because I knew it was too early in the year to break the ice."

"Well, I shall explain the expression to you."

"They meant when they said that they would break the ice, by having games ready at the start so that the party would begin right off in the right spirit, that the ones who were shy would lose their shyness right away."

"Breaking the ice meant that they would break the stiffness and the shyness of the guests at first by having plans made for them. And it seemed such a nice expression. It made me feel that when I begin to break the ice by shining so hard and making the ice melt under my warmth that I am helping along a spring party which would otherwise be a stiff, shy affair. Oh, it seemed a wonderful expression to me, and it made me very happy."

"We should think it was," said the Sun Fairies. "And we feel happy about it, too."

"Of course, I knew you would," said Mr. Sun.

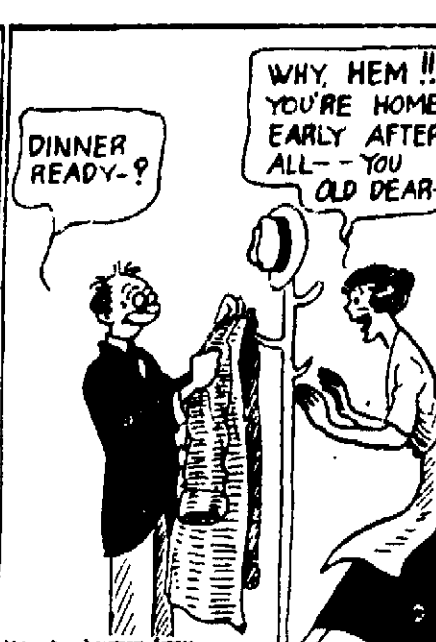

"And then," he continued, "I saw the guests arrive at the party and sure enough! Everything began so gaily for everyone was interested in the spiderweb game. And then I saw a cake with lighted candles upon it. It seemed it was the birthday of one of the guests. The candles were of all sizes, some short, some tall, some looked as though they almost might topple over for they had melted in those directions at a party given some time before."

"And I heard the candles say in their bright little fashions:

"We like it because we're used again and again. Of course there are some very superior candles in superior little holders and they're even in length and perfect and new. They're very fine. But we like to be as we are—stuck into a piece of paper over the cake which keeps us from spoiling the taste of the cake—good friendly candles, used until there is nothing left of us to use."

SAVORY PORK DISHES

This is the season of the year when "the little pig goes to market" and pork finds a well-earned place in the menu.

A very tasty dinner all in one dish may be prepared with a sparerib of pork and a quart of sauerkraut, with enough potatoes to serve the family. Roll the rib around the kraut, place the potatoes around the roast and bake in a moderate oven for several hours. Serve on a platter in the same arrangement.

Kernels of Pork.—Procure a home-brown sparerib that has been left with one meat on the ribs. Remove the end in one piece, cut into four fairly thick slices crosswise, season well and use in a hot frying pan until well oiled. Arrange on a hot serving dish with nests of seasoned mashed potatoes filled with creamed peas or small creamed onions. Garnish with parsley.

Pork Chops With Apples.—Take sufficient chops for the family, season well and dust with fine bread crumbs and place in a dripping pan. Place in each one-half of a cored apple and bake in a moderate oven half an hour. When the crumbs are brown add a little water and continue cooking.

Chop Suey.—Cut tender, fresh pork into thin slices an inch long. Cook these in a little fresh pork fat. Add a cupful or more of sliced celery and one minced onion, to the browned meat, cover with boiling water or stock and simmer until tender; a few mushrooms added to the fat in which the meat was cooked, with a tablespoonful of black molasses and a tablespoonful of soy sauce, with one teaspoonful of salt to a pound of meat. Thicken a little with cornstarch if desired. Serve with hot boiled rice.

A cupful of finely-chopped salt pork added to one cupful of molasses, some well-soaked dried apples, a few raisins, spices to taste, all heated to the boiling point and added to egg and flour with baking powder, or to a cupful or two of raised bread dough, will make a good cake which will improve with age.

Where Medicine Originated.

The oldest records of medical matters extant are those of Egypt. The most important remains of the history of medicine during antiquity come from Greece. Chiron, according to tradition, is the man who introduced the art of healing into Greece. The greatest of the ancient Greek students of medicine is Hippocrates.

Heavy as Iron.

In Argentina there is a wood called quebracho. It is pronounced as if spelled kabrachco. The word means "break up." This comes from the fact that this wood is one of the hardest and heaviest known, having a specific gravity of 1.4. It is very durable and is used for railroad ties, ship and bridge timbers, wharves, etc.

America's First Orchestra.

Bethlehem, Pa., is the most remarkable town musically in the United States. The settlement had an orchestra as early as 1780. Their modern musical festival is often referred to as the American musical Oberammergau or the American Bayreuth.

Slighted Visitor.

"Columbus was sadly disappointed after discovering America." "Yes," observed Miss Cayenne. "The dear old fellow was ahead of his time. Our continent wasn't prepared to invite him to a few banquets and start him out on a lecture tour."

The Gambling Spirit.

Little Eva—"Mother, I bet Elsie Blyth my hat against her big doll that you'd give me the money to go to the movies. You don't want me to lose my hat, do you?"—Boston Transcript.

His Training.

The Farmer—"Not a brain cell working in you! Where did you learn farming?" The New Hired Man—"Me? Why, I've studied every old homestead and back-to-the-farm play that's been screened."

FEBRUARY NUMBER OF HOME COUNTY MAGAZINE

The February number of the Home County Magazine comes out next week. The cover page will contain a fine picture of the great Mary Powell leading the merchant parade at the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty, October 28, 1886. Pages 4 and 5 will be devoted to an historical sketch of "the Queen of the Hudson," with pictures showing the Mary Powell in her heyday and as she was October 1, 1923, when relegated to the scrap heap. "Early Days Under the White Tops" is continued by Robert E. Sherwood, who tells of Mark Twain and the "Joys" Mr. Barnum and the Picknicks, and of the great circus riders of former days. William Wait in his Random Notes of History devotes his article to the eminence achieved among men by Robert E. Livingston, of whom we rarely see anything in print. The county associations are covered in the usual good style, particular attention being given to the dinners of the societies to be held within the next fortnight. "The Saturday Wash" is an article describing how in the years gone by men used to patronize the bath rooms of Heins barber shop in the days before Kingston came into possession of its water works. Captain Ulster Davis replies to the Roundout Memory Sharpeners and asks a few "new" ones about the former residents. The American Peace Award sends in a letter concerning the ballot, which will not be printed in the magazine, but instead will be mailed, together with the plan No. 1,469 to all subscribers of The Home County Magazine under separate cover. This is done at the Home County's expense in order to obviate the necessity of clipping the ballot from the magazine, as the majority of readers do not wish to mutilate their copies.

at the Colony Plaza not later than January 23. The board of directors will meet on Wednesday morning, January 30 and complete the business of the mid-winter conference. Mrs. Joseph Gavit at the City Club in Albany will arrange for room reservations for the club women.

RED PEPPER FOR COLDS IN CHEST

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness, right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates, right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

"Last Night on the Back Porch" is a hit every night as fox-trotted by the Memphis Five or harmonized by the Shannon Four on Columbia Records 7 D and A-3976.

La Du Reports on Barge Canal

Maintenance Work Should be Done by Competitive Bid—Railroad Connection Vital at Terminals—Next Season to be a Big One.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 10.—In his annual report submitted to the legislature today, State Engineer Dwight B. La Du recommended that the barge canal be maintained at 12-foot depth and that the necessary repairs be made by the state as soon as possible in the spring.

He also recommended that the work of maintaining the canal, such as dredging, be let by contract after competitive bidding. At the recent probe into the bureau of canals, ordered by Governor Smith, it was revealed that nearly $500,000 in contracts for dredging had been awarded last year without competitive bidding.

Other salient recommendations in the report follow:

That consideration be given to increase the use of the canal for the movement of local freight.

That the state constitution be amended or legislation enacted so that all old canal lands not needed, may be sold, leased or otherwise disposed of.

That provision be made for additional employees for surveying and mapping old canal and barge canal lands, and for the examination of docks and dams.

That a new department or bureau be formed to consolidate under one head the testing of all materials used on the canals.

That a law be enacted requiring town supervisors to report to the state engineer regarding the building of docks and dams within their respective townships.

That necessary legislation be enacted so the general and canal funds may be consolidated into one fund.

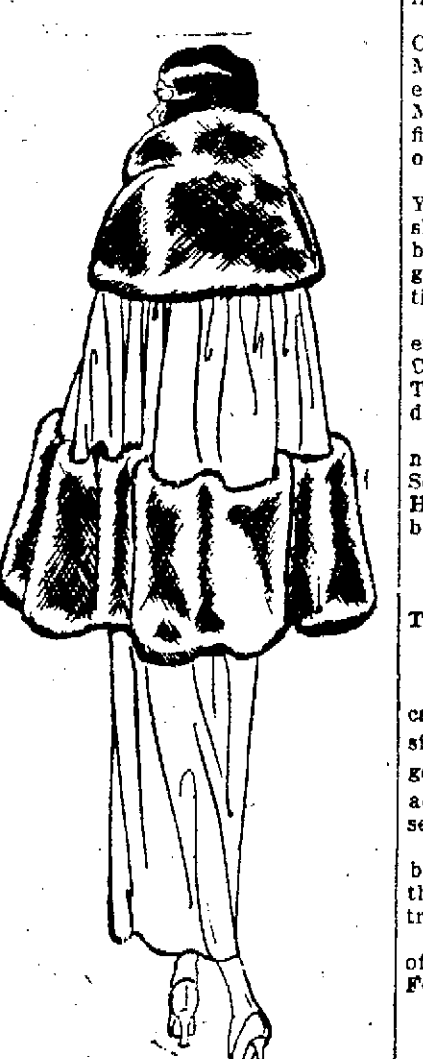

Engineer La Du believes the coming year will be one of the best, so far as traffic is concerned, that the canal has had in years. He believes it is vitally necessary to have all important canal terminals connected with railroads.

COAT WITH CAPE IS NOT FAR BEHIND

By Eleanor Gunn.

Although the slimline coat must be given the place of honor this season, the coat which has a cape as well is not far behind in favor. This is particularly true of the travel and sports types made of novelty wool and is to a more limited extent applicable to the coat which is worn over one's evening gown. Such a coat is sketched, a brilliant rose velvet with unplucked outer collar and band, the cape of which is gathered to a considerable fullness.

The subject of smart winter coats is by no means exhausted, for many women put off the purchase of one until after the holiday season, when one is sure to get excellent values. To help in the selection of a winter coat which will be as smart next season as it is this, one should be over-armed with some knowledge of what is being offered for spring, because the early spring models naturally carry the best of the winter styles.

It is well to know then, that the straight silhouette is sponsored in coats and costumes. The typical coat silhouette is marked not only by the curtailed length, but by a slimness of outline that is relieved somewhat in the comparatively loosely fitted upper section.

More than usual interest is attached to the selection of fabrics, which cover a wide range. Not the least striking feature in this phase of the mode here is the endorsement given the coat developed in silk, which for both Palm Beach and early spring wear is considered important. One type reveals the silk coat with Kaasha lining—a conception that is regarded with especial favor. A striking example of this idea is developed in castror tulle, lined with terra cotta Kaasha cloth. In lieu of embroidery or similar decoration, a large, single pocket worked in an intricate design of the fabric adds interest to the coat.

The use of a silk knitted fabric of novel weave in a wrap of formal character is interesting. This wrap proves attractive in the addition of a deep scarf-coat with a metal galon in the inner surface of the capelet, striking a novel touch.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Jan. 9.—The Auxiliary Club of this place comes under the class of clubs that seem to know what they want and take the simple and direct way to obtain it. Mrs. Emma Decker, opened her home for the first meeting of 1924, when 60 members were present. The assisting hostesses were: Mrs. Norman DuBois, Mrs. Chas. L. DuBois and Miss Bessie DuBois. These members proved themselves equal to any occasion and Mrs. R. H. Decker, the re-elected president for the twenty-sixth year will certainly make an effort to "Live Up" to all that would be expected of her in the presidency. Then the Rev. and Mrs. Foster A. Coon conducted devotional exercises after which business was taken up and a spirited and interesting meeting was gone through with. All reports of officers, executive board and committees were gratifying and all sick and shut-ins had been remembered by Sunshine chairman, Mrs. Harrington. There were reports for near east and plans made for February 22nd, Washington's Birthday, a grand Colonial supper and sale of domestic articles. It is expected that everyone will assist. A very delightful social was enjoyed after session of business closed and the hostesses served a dainty luncheon to all of very delicious fruit salad topped with whipped cream and marshmallows, wafers, cream cheese balls with English walnuts, home made cake and coffee. After digesting all these goodies all left for their respective homes with pleasant memories of the club and its pleasing hostesses.

O. E. S. held its regular meeting Tuesday evening and election of officers and a Christmas tree. "Howe Lunch" was in evidence.

The O. U. A. M. held its meeting Tuesday evening and installed officers. Mrs. George Cornell was hostess to members of the Queen Esther society. Wednesday evening, large delegation present, interesting business and fine refreshments served. All had a grand time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Stiller of Maple avenue entertained a few guests from Poughkeepsie for New Year's dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hitchcock have returned from visiting in Yonkers and Tarrytown.

Mrs. Laura Tillson Vail has gone south for the winter.

Mrs. Florence Plass attended Vassar Chapter O. E. S. meeting Friday in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Rhodes have as their guest Mrs. Dekay of Walden.

Next meeting of Music Study Club will be on next Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Fischer, Vineyard avenue, the son Elmer being a member.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Schumacher are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a young daughter. They reside at Harmon.

Miss Gertrude Wissmiller very delightfully entertained the U. D. society at her home, Saturday, January 5.

Mrs. Mellis entertained the W. C. T. U. members at her home, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. C. J. Eltinge was in charge of the program.

It is said that Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter will leave for the south some time this month, also H. W. Maynard and wife will occupy their bungalow in Florida soon.

Mrs. D. H. Kurtz and Mrs. Walter Constable were in Poughkeepsie Monday night attending Molly Pitcher Council, Daughters of America. Mrs. Kurtz was installing officer. Officers are installed twice a year in D. of A. order, January and July.

Lloyd Plass spent four days in New York city attending the automobile show at the Field Artillery Armory building at 93rd street. There is a grand display of cars of all descriptions.

Week of prayer opened on Tuesday evening with union service in M. E. Church, also Wednesday evening. Then in the other church on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Simon Hendricks has moved his newspaper and cigar store in J. Schoonmaker's barber shop. Doty and Humphrey will commence fixing the building for a drug store.

SMOKER FOR MEN OF
ST. PETER'S ON MONDAY

Arrangements are about complete for the smoker and stag to be held on Monday evening next at St. Peter's school hall under the auspices of the men's societies of the parish.

Among the interesting features which it is planned to have is a basketball game between the senior team and a fast quintet, at least three boxing bouts staged by experts, vaudeville by exceptionally good talent, and musical solo numbers by artists in their line. In addition there will be refreshments and smokes.

St. Peter's men are anticipating a good time and invite their friends to join with them. The tickets are going fast, which would indicate that the last stag held by the men created a favorable impression.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

Increase in Publication Rates by New Law.

Chapter 877 of the laws of 1923 makes an important change in the rates payable to newspapers for publishing legal notices. For many years the rate was 75 cents per folio for the first insertion and 50 cents for each subsequent insertion, irrespective of the circulation of the newspaper making the publication. Under the new law payment is based on lines—not on folios—and varies according to circulations of papers. Formerly a notice to creditors, for example, published 26 times, came to $13.26, if it made one folio. The same notice occupies 18 or 20 lines in the Freeman and other papers having between 7,500 and 10,000 circulation is 8 cents per line for the first insertion and 6 cents for subsequent insertions—making in all $31.60. In the case of papers of less than 5,000 circulation the rates per line are 6 cents and 4 cents, making in all $21.20, which applies to the semi-weekly Freeman and Journal.

tember in Boston, at a meeting of the American Prison Association.

"So you will see that prison conditions have changed, but our prisons are still Jurassic and Jack-assical."

"They are Jurassic because they have come from the days when there were only two classes, the righteous and the unrighteous, when if a man insulted some minor deity he was put to death, or if he insulted a greater deity his family was extinguished, or if he insulted some greater deity his entire tribe was put to the sword."

"So long as those men remained in their temples or sanctuaries, they were safe, but as soon as they came out they were liable to be killed.
From those ancient temples or sanctuaries in time was evolved the idea of our present penitentiaries."

"One hundred and fifty years ago, there were one hundred and twenty-five offenses punishable by death, including the offense of stealing a sheep. It was about that time that men were drawn and quartered for certain offenses. Then men began to build prisons. The idea of prisons was punishment, and the principal thing was to keep the prisoners with-
in. That is yet the idea, but some of the prisons remain the same as they were, and even yet there is in use, at Charlestown, Mass., a prison
one hundred years old, whose doors are so small that a man must stoop to enter his cell. No sunlight ever enters that prison. If a man must take three steps in his cell, he must first fold his cot against the wall.
There is no room in which all, or part of the prisoners, can eat at one time. Instead, each man's food is brought to him on a tin tray, with a water bucket which is filled once a day, and when he eats he must put the tray on the slop bucket which is always in the cell. Can you make men under such circumstances? Such conditions are destructive not only of the man himself but of the society you have in mind when you send him to prison."

"Take, for example, the state of Massachusetts. It is far advanced in everything except its prisons. In 1914—I use that year because it is a fair average year, before the effect of the war could be credited for certain conditions, before arguments could be advanced linking up all crime with prohibition—in 1914 the state of Massachusetts had 84,000 offenders. It really had more than 84,000, but that was the number who did not burn their bridges behind them—they were overtaken.
Most of them had been convicted of misdemeanors, of petty offenses, of being drunk and disorderly, or petty larceny, but there was a great proportion who had been convicted of felonies."

"Fifty-seven per cent of that number were repeaters; that is, they were serving their second, third, or fourth or more terms. Right there is the indictment which shows that the product of your present system is a failure. Those fifty-seven per cent of repeaters were responsible for 91 per cent of the offenses committed by a little more than one-half of the prison inmates."

"The natural deduction from these figures is that you, as society, had these people in your hands when they were first offenders, when they were weaklings, that you put them through your various what-nots and then turned them out worse than they were when they came in.

"I come before you with a program. It is not my own program, but is the program of more than two hundred men who have reached the same conclusion as I have, through the same experiences. When I was married, after I was released from the Arizona prison, of all the wedding gifts she received my wife was happiest over a telegram which came from a Federal prison. It said, 'We expect you to be our torch-bearer.
Do not throw us down.'"

"I like to talk to business men.
I do not expect you to adopt my program at once, but I hope to make you stop and think."

"What we ask you—what we ask society—to give us, is celerity of justice, certainty of justice, character of justice."

"Thirty days after eleven bullets had blotted out the life of General Wilson in London, two assassins were swinging from the end of a rope to pay the penalty of their act.
We do not have as swift action as that in America. We have too much delay here. We do not want to see men languish in jail for twelve to fifteen months awaiting the trial to which they are entitled. Nor do we ask too speedy a trial that would deny us the opportunity of justice."

"Then, having given us celerity of justice, give us certainty of justice.
We want to see the same conditions for the rich as for the poor man, and we ask you to institute an office known in such places as it has been instituted as the 'Public Defender.'
In some counties you will find lawyers of prominence and ability who work in cooperation with various associations and defend certain prisoners, but as a rule the prisoner is at the mercy of the shyster who hangs around the courts, waiting for an opportunity to take five or ten dollars from the offender or from members of his family, in return for which he advises the offender to plead guilty."

"In New York city today there is a man who is responsible for the theft of more than two and one-half million dollars in securities, in the taking of which two bank messengers were killed. Ostensibly the police everywhere were looking for this man, but one day when the blue-coats were on parade a handsome automobile drew up at the curb and out stepped Nicky Arnstein and surrendered himself. Since that day he has been out of prison twenty-five months, and during that time twenty-five hundred men have been sent up for offenses they have committed."

"By instituting the office of Public Defender, you will reduce the costs of caring for your offenders;
you will increase the efficiency of your probation system; you will get greater accuracy in receiving pleas of guilty. The office may turn more offenders loose than the present system, but there will be more people sent up who should be sent up than are now being put away. For instance, Clara Phillips in San Antonio, when the jury which tried her brought in a verdict of guilty, turned to Judge Walton Wood, the Public Defender, and calmly said, 'Now take your motion for a new trial and then take your appeal to the supreme court.' But Judge Wood refused, saying he had felt certain she was guilty, that he had defended because of his duty and to see that no injustice was done, that the evidence had clearly established her guilt and he would not appeal on technicalities in such a case."

"Then when you have established celerity and certainty of justice, we ask that you furnish certain character of justice. That character must be established by physiological and pathological examination."

"Thirty-five per cent of the inmates of our penal institutions are mental defectives. Eighty-five per cent of the repeaters are defectives.
In no states are the courts as yet required by law to hold such examinations before trial. What you do is to punish an effect and not its cause."

"Then when you find an offender is normal, do not give him a fixed sentence, or a so-called indeterminate sentence. If a man is a defective, as sent to see him sent to a correctional institution for any time ranging from one day to life, regardless of whether his offense has been stealing ten cents or a crime of violence. I have seen men who had friends of influence who have pleaded guilty and through the influence of friends have been given short sentences of indeterminate character,
and as soon as they had been released they committed offenses again and soon were again in prison."

"You yourselves have seen men who in anger have committed an offense—perhaps in anger have killed some member of the family whom they really loved—who before they offended were men of sterling character, and after they entered prison
they again became men of sterling character. They are the men who are most valuable in prisons—they become the trustees. They commit offenses because they had ceased to be a social factor, but they should be given their liberty when they again become a social factor. If a man can't become a social factor, I would keep him in an institution for life, no matter what his offense, because when he is released he will again become an offender."

"I ask that, while we are in prison, that you will feed our bellies, feed our minds, flex our fingers and flex our backbones."

"You can only make men normal on wholesome food. Blackstrap and molasses three times a day, such as is fed in some southern prisons, or Mexican strawberries such as I was fed on three times a day, or brown beans three times a day, will not develop health or mentality."

"Next, flex our fingers. Most of the inmates of prisons never learned any trade, never learned the love to work. Do not make men slaves of contractors, or competitors of the needwomen, and however slight the remuneration may be, pay them something."

"Pay them for two reasons:
First, so they shall understand what thrift is, so they can manage the few pennies you do give them;
Second, so they can do something to recompense the victim, for every offender should be compelled to pay something and the efforts by which he is made to pay should be most interesting."

"Then, good for our minds. If education is good for our children in the schools, so much more is it needed for the weaker children in the prison. One hour a week, which generally is the amount devoted in prisons

to education, is not enough.

"Lastly, flex our backbones. Most men are weak. I do not believe in the old saying that every man has his price. I consider that statement an insult. But human nature is weak when temptation comes under certain circumstances. A man with an empty belly going down a dark street who sees a ham displayed in front of a butcher shop and nobody around to see him has hard work to withstand the temptation to take that ham which he knows will satisfy his hunger. If Tiffany's was on a dark street, unguarded, are there not people of even stronger will who might not hesitate if opportunity presented itself to help themselves?"

"Build character in us. You send men to prison and you keep them working there, but you neglect their character. How are you going to do this?"

"I would like to see in every prison a committee of three men. Call one of them the warden; if you will he should be a man of executive and business ability, clear of politics.
Associate with him a physical executive who knows physical and mental defects, not a man who is a small man without knowledge, but a man who has knowledge that comes from study and experience. Associate with these two a moral executive,
big and broad, who knows that religion is not creed. Pay these men salaries big enough to command the kind of men you want. Then cut the red tape which encompasses them;
give them elbow room, and they will accomplish things."

"I only left prison a year ago on New Year's day. The day before I left the warden called me up—I had charge of the 360 acre farm—to have me distribute some papers among the inmates. One white-haired old chap had been in prison nine times. His paper had a big gold seal on like mine. Twenty minutes later he came to me and said he needed $30 because he had only $20 and it cost him $50 to get an automobile to take him to Phoenix. I argued that he better travel by train and use the money for a gift for his wife, but he said that Dixie—his wife—would rather have him there on New Year's eve than any gift he could buy with money. Somehow I managed to get him the $30. When I left, I went to Hollywood because I wanted to see conditions there. While there, a call came for me at the home where I was staying, and a man placed his hands over my eyes. It was my white-haired old friend, who wanted to show me two steam presses, fully paid for, and a bank book showing deposits of $400 and a life insurance policy for $2,500."

"A month ago I was told I had a caller waiting to see me in my New York office, and there was my old white-haired friend, come east on a buying trip."

"I ask you merely to think over the things I have said to you."

"I am sure that you will find in

Charlie Powers and "Soup" Campbell Play Brilliant Games—Visitors Shoot Well From the Foul Line But are Outclassed On The Floor.

"Soup" Campbell proved to local fandom at the armory court on Wednesday evening that Manager Morgenweck was on the right track when he succeeded in getting him re-instated in the Metropolitan League and available for his team. Campbell played a very good floor game and was exceptionally clever in shooting baskets from the playground under difficulties. Charlie Powers received the honors for scoring, caging a total of 14 points. Carl Husta was held scoreless from the field during the entire struggle. Anderson again showed up well at the center position. Artus played in the other guard position and he worked well with Campbell. M. Husta was in this game for the final two points replacing Powers.

George Norman was the best shot for the Yonkers quintet, making 9 points. Marron, a youngster, was next with 8 points, caging a field and six out of six fouls.

Referee Meehan was again the eleventh man in the cage. He didn't call quite as many fouls as on former occasions. During the contest Kingston was fouled 27 times and Yonkers 20.

During the first half period the locals were poor from the fifteen foot line, registering but five out of fourteen attempts. Six field goals brought the total to 17. The visiting outfit caged seven out of seven chances from the complimentary line. Three from the playground, totalling 13. In the final session, out of 13 fouls called on each side, Kingston made but five and Yonkers seven. Six fouls to four gave the Morgenweck clan the six point advantage at closing time, score 34 to 28.

All during the contest the score was never in a safe position, with the exception of the last minute of play. Yonkers made a much better showing on this occasion than previously. Although Kingston was never headed during the game, they were kept mighty busy holding the lead. The game was much faster than those recently played, team work on both sides featuring Charlie Powers and Campbell played bang up games during the entire struggle. The local representatives evened up the games with the Yonkers squad for the second half.

On Wednesday next at the local court the Greenpoint team will furnish the opposition. The usual dancing followed the contest and was enjoyed by a large number.

Peerless A. C. Beat Battery E

In the preliminary game at the armory Wednesday evening, the Peerless A. C. submerged the Battery E. quintet by a 35 to 20 score. Joyce for the winners was the leading scorer with 13 points in his column. Gaddis did the best work for the losers, scoring 10 points. The Peerless A. C. led the way and were never in danger. Henry Dittus, jumping center for the Peerless A. C. outfit, played a good floor game, being instrumental in completing many fields. He also had 8 points to his credit. This was the ninth straight for the Peerless A. C.

First Home Game at K. H. S.

"Tomorrow night the local high school basketball team plays its first home game. This game is a league game, the opposing team being Port Jervis. Port Jervis was beaten by Middletown 3 to 9. Kingston beat Middletown 27 to 11. If anything can be seen by comparing scores it will be a win for the local quintet. The locals have practiced hard for the game, going through a practice period Monday, and a real game with the seconds Wednesday night. The team as a whole has been working well. Coach Anderson has developed the passwork of the team, which also means better team work. The locals have thus far played two league games, winning both of them, and are well on their way to showing the way to the next of the league teams.

Coach Anderson will probably start the same lineup that he did in the Middletown game: Schmidt, captain, and Corrigan, forwards; Vogt, center; McLane and Stock, guards.

GOSHEN OFFERED GRAND CIRCUIT RACING DATES

At a meeting of the stewards of the grand circuit held at Syracuse, Tuesday, January 8, an invitation was extended to Goshen to hold a five days' racing meeting over its one-mile oval and dates from August 18 to August 23 were allotted to Goshen as a new member. Definite decision on the part of horsemen in Goshen interested in light harness racing as to whether they would accept the invitation of affairs and condition in Orange county, was withheld. Goshen was given fifteen days to make a definite decision. There will be seventy-six days of racing on the Grand Circuit opening at Cleveland and closing at Lexington, Ky., on October 11.

NOVELIST DENIES SHE IS "LOVE THIEF."

Nina Wilcox Putnam Sanderson, noted novelist, has entered emphatic denial in New York City to the charges of Mrs. Gertrude P. Bassett, of Madison, Conn., that she stole the love of Mrs. Bassett's giant husband, Ellsworth Bassett, and that she asked Mrs. Bassett to secure a divorce so she could marry the former clam digger, who is now her business representative. Mrs. Sanderson's recent divorce in Providence, R. I., from her husband, Robert J. P. Sanderson, was immediately vacated by the court on the allegation she had not lived the required two years in the State. The Bassetts have one child, Adrian Ellsworth. Mrs. Bassett is employed in the Madison post office.

WOMAN NOVELIST IN CURIOUS TRIANGLE.

Nina Wilcox Putnam, noted writer, whose divorce from Robert J. Sanderson was set aside a few hours after it was granted by a Providence, R. I., court, is alleged to have begged the wife of her chauffeur Bassett, of Madison, Conn., who supports herself and her three-year-old son by working in the Madison postoffice. She declares Mrs. Sanderson made the request last summer, but that she had declined to do former painter and clam digger, graduated from being Mrs. Sanderson's chauffeur to act as her business manager and personal representative. They are shown here with Montgomery Schuyler, writer, and Mrs. Sanderson denied the charge, calling it a
